For the women of the Sisterhood, planning a lavish reception for their longtime ally, attorney Lizzie Fox, at their luxurious mountain retreat is the ideal way to unwind after their latest successful mission. The only cloud over the happy occasion is that their mentor, Charles, is still mysteriously absent.

But amid the friendly bickering about floral arrangements, cake tiers, and wedding favors, the ladies of Pinewood receive a frantic phone call from Nikki's fiancé, Jack Emery. Harry Wong—Yoko's true love and a staunch reporter of the Sisterhood—has become the victim of a ruthless identity theft ring. Harry's bank accounts have been closed out, his beloved dojo is being foreclosed, and he's being evicted. Distraught, Yoko is about to rush down the mountain to Harry's aid when the Sisters intercept her. A situation like Harry's requires finesse, careful planning, and the Sisterhood's distinctive brand of vigilante justice.

When Kate Sutherland hears Donovan MacLeod’s voice, she starts to sweat. Not that well-bred heiresses are supposed to sweat, but if you saw Donovan MacLeod, you’d need a change of clothes, too. It’s been eighteen years, but he’s got the same cocky swagger, silver-gray eyes, shaggy hair, and that sexy smile that promises a whole lot of trouble.

When she asks him “Why are you here, Donovan?” he knows she deserves an answer. Well, Kate Sutherland, how about, I’ve fantasized about you for eighteen years? Or, I wanted to remember how it feels to need a cold shower every time you flick that perfect blond hair out of your blue eyes? Or, Why don’t you come over here and let me show you, baby? Yeah, good answers, but I’ll stick with the first one—I came back to help, because I think you’re in for some trouble. My bad-boy gut says you’re gonna need me—in more ways than one.

Gregory Funaro

In the bestselling tradition of the The Silence of the Lambs, The Sculptor is a terrifying debut serial killer thriller that delivers “gasp-out-loud terror and relentless suspense”* set in a media-saturated culture spiraling out of control.

In life, they were flawed. In death, they are perfect works of art—killed, preserved, and carefully molded into replicas of Michelangelo’s most celebrated creations. Only The Sculptor can bring forth their true beauty and teach the world to appreciate his gift.

FBI Special Agent Sam Markham has a reputation for tracking serial killers, but this artful adversary is meticulous, disciplined, and more ruthless than any he’s encountered. The only clue is a note dedicating the latest “statue” to an art historian who shares Agent Markham’s fear that the killing has just begun.

As the Sculptor shapes his latest macabre creation, the only way to save his next victim is for Agent Markham to unlock a psychopath’s twisted mind before his final, terrifying masterpiece is revealed.

A big city like St. Louis is the last place where a mountain man like Preacher would pick a fight. But how else will he get at the ruthless power broker who is using fear and bloodshed to take over the Western fur trade.

Shaving his beard, posing as a greedy hayseed from Ohio, the Preacher comes face-to-face with Shad Beaumont—who is leaving St. Louis with an army of hired gunmen...with the Preacher on his tail. The odds couldn't be worse and the battleground couldn't be more violent. For the wild frontier is no place for fancy plots or poor disguises—but a fine spot for a killing ground.

William W. Johnstone is one of Kensington's bestselling authors, with more than 250 titles to his credit.

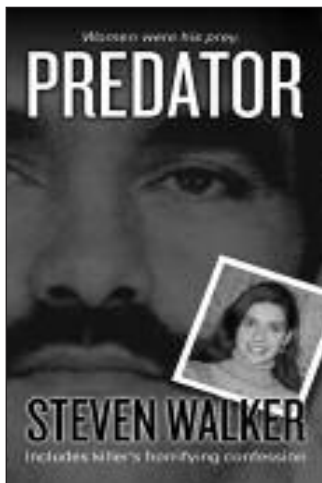

J.A. Johnstone is a Tennessee-based novelist.

On August, 15, 1977, a double-homicide shocked the residents in the tight-knit community of Cape Girardeau, Missouri. The bodies of mother and daughter, Mary and Brenda Parsh, were discovered by a neighbor after being brutalized, murdered, and left to rot in the scorching summer heat. Three months later, the body of Sheila Cole, a promising young college student, was found. The town was being terrorized and there were no clues to reveal the killer's identity.

Unsolved murders in Illinois and Pennsylvania disturbed quiet towns unused to violence. Cape Girardeau became the target of three more vicious homicides in 1982. The town was on the verge of panic and the police department was no closer to finding who was responsible than it was five years earlier. But finally, new DNA technology linked Timothy Krajcir, a convicted sexual predator, to the 1982 murder of Deborah Sheppard in Carbondale, Illinois. States across the nation began to search for links to Krajcir and unsolved murders that had taken place over a period of 30 years. As the growing number of cases pointed to this one man, he finally admitted to nine murders and multiple sexual assaults in exchange for evading the death penalty. How many more crimes he was responsible for will probably never be revealed.

“All crime connoisseurs should read Steven Walker’s account of this clever and deviant predator.” —Katherine Ramsland, author of The Human Predator and The Devil’s Dozen

Steven Walker is the co-author of the acclaimed true-crime book Blood Trail. He has worked as a journalist for The Morning Call, a division of the Tribune Company. Born in Heidelberg, Germany, he currently lives in Allentown, Pennsylvania.

But before they can consummate their relationship, they are captured by Dutch slave traders and taken aboard a ship headed for the Americas.

The girl and her teenaged lover are sold to a wealthy plantation owner on the island of Santo Domingo. Will they escape to find love and freedom in the New World? Or will they find that lust, lies, and power are a way of life to which they must adapt?
