After a lively tour through the Old South of Gone With the Wind, Delilah Dickinson is ready for a leisurely steamboat trip down the Mississippi. But when one of her passengers winds up dead, Delilah has to get to the bottom of this downright ornery mystery.

Pretty soon Delilah's list of suspects is longer than the Mississippi is wide...not to mention she's taken quite a shine to Mark Twain himself—or rather, to the handsome actor putting on a one-man show aboard the riverboat. But things are never what they seem when Delilah's at the helm, and pretty soon one murder has turned to two, and the killer's next step may be truly explosive...

MEN I MIGHT HAVE KNOWN

Brad Saunders

In this steamy and imaginative collection of gay erotica, Brad Saunders turns “what if” into “what happened,” recreating the sizzling chance connections he’s experienced, and playing them out in uninhibited, wildly provocative stories.

From a glorious day on a sun-kissed Greek beach with a beautiful German man to a college crush that turns out to be deliciously mutual, Brad Saunders’ stories are sometimes tender, sometimes torrid, and always deeply erotic. Tapping into his deepest fantasies, he writes about a gym buddy who provides a workout to remember, and of a Manhattan rooftop party that yields a spectacular view (and not of the skyline).

Brad Saunders lives in Los Angeles and is hard at work on several books and screenplays.
