No one is surprised when feisty Delilah Dickinson opens her literary travel agency in Atlanta after her divorce. But during her first group's tour of an old plantation modeled after Tara from Gone with the Wind, she finds herself in the middle of a murder mystery when the actor playing Clark Gable playing Rhett Butler is found dead. Almost immediately, the police have the place under lockdown.

Delilah finds herself taking over the investigation when their #1 suspect is her son-in-law Luke—the not-so-bright husband of her daughter, Melissa. But life starts imitating art when the actors begin taking their roles a little too seriously—believing they actually are Ashley Wilkes, Scarlett O'Hara, and Melanie.

With all the drama of Margaret Mitchell's epic story suddenly coming to alarming life, Delilah's only chance to head off a not-so-Civil War is to track down and confront the deranged murderer. But she must move quickly and very quietly—or risk becoming the next victim of a killer who frankly doesn't give a damn.

Livia J. Washburn has been a professional writer for more than twenty years. She received the Private Eye of America Award and the American Mystery Award for her first mystery, Wild Night. Frankly My Dear, I'm Dead is the first book in her new Literary Tour mystery series. She lives in Azle, Texas.

Troubled and angry after her mother's death, Liza threatens to embarrass her Aunt Abigail all over town unless she joins her for quilting classes. A victim of downsizing at the peak of her career, Margot hopes an event hosted by the quilt shop could be a great chance to network—and keep from dying of boredom.

Tammy Fournier

Based on the gritty true story of the author, this compelling urban novel details the life of a powerful booster—groomed by street legends, and influenced by love.

But when she meets a Dominican King Pin named Julio, she falls in love and out of control. Will love find a way? Is there someone with other plans for Tara? Or will she be next in line to reign over the family business?
