THE DAILY SHOW WITH JON STEWART PRESENTS EARTH (THE BOOK)

"Inspired parody....The book's ultimate joke...is that it's not only more informative about how American government and culture work than the textbooks it burlesques, but gives us a keener sense of having a stake in both."—The New York Times Book Review for America (The Book)

New from the Emmy-winning, Oscar-hosting, Daily Show-anchoring Jon Stewart—the man behind the megaseller America (The Book).

Where do we come from? Who created us? Why are we here? These are questions that have sporadically interested people since the dawn of time, but whose answers have continually eluded us. Now, in a new book, Jon Stewart and The Daily Show writing staff tackle these questions and more with their trademark wit, irreverence and intelligence. In it, they will take us on an intellectual voyage through time—a quest back to the very moment of creation—that will maybe, just maybe, help us to figure out exactly how and why everything got so irretrievably fed up.

Whether you believe our world was formed through a hundred-million-year-long process of protoplanetary accretion and collision, or from the head and shoulders of Coatlique, Lady of the Skirt of Snakes, after she was torn apart by the serpentine avatars of Quetzalcoatl and Tezcatlipoca, one thing's for certain: It's a heckava place. And who better to be our guide to this endlessly fascinating planet than Jon Stewart and his team of writers, as they answer all of life's most hardhitting questions, completely unburdened by objectivity, journalistic integrity or even accuracy.
