THE SHERLOCKIAN GRAHAM MOORE

"What irresistible fun! As the literary intrigue deepens, with Arthur Conan Doyle, Bram Stoker, and some brainy Sherlock Holmes buffs as partners in crime, you don't have to be Holmes to deduce that THE SHERLOCKIAN is a serpentine delight for anyone who loves mystery and historical suspense."—Rupert Holmes, The Mystery of Edwin Drood

"It must be said of [Moore] that he has his methods. Ingenious and amusing ones, too. You will enjoy their elucidation even if you are not a committed Sherlockian. The game's afoot!"—Christopher Hitchens

THE SHERLOCKIAN is a gripping historical suspense novel, set in the present day and Victorian London, centering upon the holy grail of Sherlock Holmes enthusiasts—the author's famed missing diary.

Sherlock Holmes 2: A Game of Shadows from director Guy Ritchie and starring Robert Downey Jr., Jude Law and Rachel McAdams hits theaters December 16, 2011.

GRAHAM MOORE is a 28-year-old graduate of Columbia University, where he received his degree in Religious History.
